DEDICATION

To Dr. Harry E. Latcham, D.D.S., F.A.C.D.

For his genuine interest in the welfare of the students and the School, for his honesty and sincerity, for his exacting but friendly personality, for his gentlemanly qualities, for what he is and for what he stands, we dedicate this book to our friend and teacher.

Dr. Harry E. Latcham was born at Montezuma, Iowa, May 5, 1879. After completing his high school studies in 1898, he attended the Northwestern University Dental School, from which he was graduated in 1901.

Soon after receiving his degree, Dr. Latcham began to be recognized in his profession. In 1906 he read his first paper before a dental meeting, and four years later he became president of the Fort Dodge District Society (Iowa). From 1914 to 1930 Dr. Latcham played a very active part in the organized dentistry of his native state, serving as Librarian of the Iowa State Dental Society, Editor of the Iowa Bulletin, member of the State Executive Committee, President of the Iowa State Dental Society, and as a member and officer of several study clubs.

Dr. Latcham came to Baltimore in 1930, when he was appointed Assistant Professor of Operative Dentistry at this School. Today he still holds this position. In Maryland, as in Iowa, Dr. Latcham has been active in the affairs of his professional organizations.

ADMINISTRATION

Philip H. Austen, A.M., M.D., D.D.S.

Philip H. Austen, A.M., M.D., D.D.S., was born in Baltimore in 1822. He graduated from Yale at the age of 19. Two years later he graduated in medicine from the University of Maryland and practiced medicine in Baltimore for about ten years, giving special attention to diseases of the mouth. He then studied dentistry and graduated from the Baltimore College of Dental Surgery in 1849. The same year he was appointed Lecturer on Chemistry and Metallurgy and in 1852 Professor of Dental Mechanism, in the B.C.D.S. In 1860 he became Professor of the Principles of Dental Science and Chemistry, and was Dean of the college from 1853 to 1865. He left the college in 1875 because of ill health and a desire to give more of his time to outdoor exercise. He became a civil engineer with the West Virginia Coal and Iron Mines, of which he was part owner. Here he tried to improve the condition of the people in his neighborhood. When typhoid fever broke out, he gave constant attention and free medical services to his neighbors.

He was a remarkable man and well informed on all general subjects. He possessed high talents, great intelligence, and indomitable will-power. Austen was an amiable, courteous gentleman and a generous and self-sacrificing friend.

On October 1, 1878, soon after his recovery from a serious illness, he was severely burned at his home in Baltimore. On October 28, he died from exhaustion, brought about by the seriousness of his burns.

One of the leading professors in the history of the B.C.D.S., Austen discharged the duties entrusted to him with high honor and rare ability. He was a fluent speaker and an interesting and effective lecturer. His chief attention in dentistry was given to dental mechanics.

He made numerous and valuable contributions to the science and literature of his profession and was an author of considerable reputation. He translated Jourdain's Diseases and Surgical Operations of the Mouth, and edited, together with Gorgas and Latimer, the last edition of Harris' Principles and Practice of Dentistry.

In Memoriam

Alexander H. Paterson, D.D.S., F.A.C.D.

On February 4, 1941, dentistry lost one of its most important figures with the demise of Dr. Alexander Horn Paterson, D.D.S., F.A.C.D. Dr. Paterson was a prominent contributor to modern prosthetic dentistry, of which subject he was professor at the Baltimore College of Dental Surgery, Dental School, University of Maryland. He was not only famous for his accomplishments in dental progress and education but renowned as a specialist in prosthesis and as an important contributor to dental literature.

Dr. Paterson, one of twelve children of Henry and Elizabeth Hoag Paterson was born in Arnot, Tioga county, Pennsylvania, on May 11, 1878. Both of his parents were natives of Cumbernauld, Scotland, his father having followed merchandising since his emigration to America. Dr. Paterson received his elementary education in the public schools of his native town; and his secondary training at Starkey Seminary, Lakemont, New York. In order to secure means for entering college he worked for several years at various occupations, such as coal-mining and meat-cutting. He received his professional education in the Dental Department of the University of Maryland; and when he was graduated in 1911, every scholastic honor which the School offered was conferred upon him. Immediately after graduation, he was appointed Demonstrator in Prosthetic Dentistry. Dr. Paterson followed the advice of Dr. Timothy O. Heatwole, who had been his dean, and prepared himself thoroughly in the field of dental prosthesis.

Throughout his professional life, Dr. Paterson devoted the greater part of his time and inexhaustible energy to perfecting the techniques which were in existence, and in developing newer, more scientific, advancements in denture prosthesis. As a result, he became one of the leading prosthodontists in the world. In addition to his teaching at the dental school, he presented lectures and clinics in every Eastern and Southern state and many Mid-Western and Western states in this country, as well as in several European countries. His untiring study and research, his profound accomplishments, and his earnest teachings have greatly influenced the development of more adequate and scientific denture service in the United States and Europe.

Dr. Paterson was a member of the American Dental Association, Baltimore Dental Society, Maryland State Dental Association, Psi Omega Fraternity and Omicron Kappa Upsilon Fraternity. He was chairman of the Historical Exhibits Committee of the Dental Centenary Celebration held in Baltimore during March, 1940.

In Memoriam

William M. Hillegeist

On June 2, 1940, the students and faculty of the University of Maryland lost one of their most highly esteemed associates, Mr. Willard M. Hillegeist, Director of Admissions. Mr. Hillegeist, a native of Baltimore, received his high school education at the Polytechnic Institute. Following his graduation in 1912 from the old Maryland Agricultural College, he undertook practical agricultural work for one year. He then returned to the College as secretary to Dr. H. J. Patterson, President.

Two years later, he organized the Home Study Department and acted as its secretary. During the World War, Mr. Hillegeist left the University to do special detail work for the United States Department of Agriculture.

After an absence of one year, he returned to College Park to reorganize the registrar's office and take charge of that department of the university. After the consolidation of the University of Maryland and the Maryland Agricultural College, he organized the Registrar's office for the Baltimore schools; and, in 1921, he moved to Baltimore to work with the professional schools.

When Dr. H. C. Byrd created the office of Director of Admissions, in 1936, he called upon Mr. Hillegeist to organize and head this department. He held this position up to the time of his death.

Mr. Hillegeist had many interests aside from his active work at the University. He was a co-organizer and president of the Maryland branch of the American Association of Collegiate Registrars. He was a charter member and the first secretary of the Lions Club International of Baltimore, an alumnus of Kappa Alpha fraternity, and an honorary member of Pi Delta Epsilon, journalistic fraternity.

Mr. Hillegeist's sincerity and cheerful nature served him well in the position he held. As Director of Admissions, he was able to help overcome the feeling of strangeness and helplessness known to all incoming freshmen. His friendly greeting and helpful suggestions caused him to be affectionately known by the students as "Hillie". All of the students who met him when they entered the school will remember the extent to which he added personality to the strange environment of a building in downtown Baltimore.

THE LIBRARY

The library of the Baltimore College of Dental Surgery, Dental School, University of Maryland, was probably the first institutional dental library in this country. Its origin is associated with men who were foremost in the collection of dental literature. Many of the works of Dr. Chapin A. Harris, one of the founders of the dental profession, are in the library.

However, soon after the merging of the B.C.D.S. and the Dental Department of the University of Maryland in 1923, Dr. J. Ben Robinson began a program of reorganization. The present excellent status of the library is due largely to the splendid efforts of the man who, as our Dean, regards the library as a very important force in dental education.

In 1925 the Maryland State Dental Association established the Clarence J. Grieves Library Foundation as a memorial to one of its distinguished members. In 1926 the Foundation was merged with the library of the School under the name of the Clarence J. Grieves Foundation Library. The several hundred books in the private collection of Dr. Grieves, plus other volumes from the old Baltimore College of Dental Surgery and from the Dental Department of the University of Maryland, brought the total number of volumes of dental interest to approximately 700. In later years, through generous endowments by the State Dental Society, the University of Maryland and The Carnegie Foundation, the collection has grown to 5,481 volumes. In addition the library contains one of the most complete files of dental journals to be found anywhere in this country.

CLASSES

Ferdinand J. S. Gorgas, B.A., M.D., D.D.S., M.D.

Dr. Ferdinand J. S. Gorgas was one of the most famous dental educators and authors of his time. He served as fifth dean of the Baltimore College of Dental Surgery from 1865 to 1882, and as first dean of the Dental Department of the University of Maryland, from 1882 to 1911. Much of the development of these two schools, and, consequently, much of the progress of the profession of dentistry can be attributed to the untiring efforts of this brilliant man.

Dr. Gorgas, son of John De Lancy Gorgas and Mary Ann Gorgas, was born in Winchester, Virginia, on July 28, 1834. He received his preliminary education at the Dickinson Grammar School and Dickinson College, at Carlisle, Pennsylvania. One year after receiving his Bachelor of Arts Degree, he was awarded the degree of Doctor of Dental Surgery by the Baltimore College of Dental Surgery. Two years later, in 1857, Dickinson College conferred upon him the degree of Master of Arts. In the same year, he was appointed Demonstrator of Mechanical Dentistry in the Baltimore College of Dental Surgery; three years later, he was made Professor of the same subject. While active in dental education, he studied medicine at the University of Maryland and received his degree in 1863. Soon afterwards, he became a volunteer surgeon in the United States Army. In 1865, he became dean of the Baltimore College of Dental Surgery, which office he held until 1882. From 1882 to 1911, he served the Dental Department of the University of Maryland as dean and as Professor of Prosthetic Dentistry, Oral Surgery, and Dental Medicine. On April 8, 1914, he died in Baltimore, Maryland, as a result of apoplexy.

Dr. Gorgas ranked high as a writer of dental subjects. While dean of the University of Maryland, he thoroughly revised Harris's Principles and Practice of Dentistry and put it through the 11th, 12th, and 13th editions. In addition, he revised and enlarged Harris's Dental Dictionary several times. Dr. Gorgas wrote the first text on dental medicine in 1884. He was also author of State Board Questions and Answers, which he revised periodically. He was editor of The American Journal of Dental Surgery. In both lecturing and writing, Dr. Gorgas's style was characterized by grammatical perfection, orderly arrangement of detail, absence of ambiguity, and clearness and originality of thought. Undoubtedly, he was one of the most famous contributors to dental texts and periodicals.

Senior Class Chronicle

The excitement of returning to school in the fall was heightened by national elections, the war, and the battle for patients. We were fortunate in being addressed by such outstanding men as Dr. Hume of the foreign mission service, who spoke on the necessity for humanism and understanding among peoples. We were also addressed by Dr. Brauer, pedodontist, who proved to us that a dentist's wit can be as sharp as the instruments used by seniors after working in Dr. Latcham's section.

We are being graduated into a changing world. Some of us will see military service, some will intern and some practice privately. We are all a part of the struggle to preserve. This is a serious time to be let loose in the world. It is up to us, as a vital part of national life and health, to maintain democratic thought and action.

Perhaps in ten years when we're looking at the bills for office rent, house rent, shoes for Johnny—we'll wish we were back in the clinic doing that MOD for the fifth time or waiting for our broken appointments.

Junior Class Chronicle

Early in September our class was let loose upon humanity. We started the year on Dr. Latchams's rubber dam clinics by lacerating each other's gingivae. After this brief session we graduated to our first patients. The first step in this procedure was to impress the person with the fact that his particular case presented great difficulties. Then in the record time of two or three hours a Class 1 was prepared in a lower bicuspid.

Even with this hectic beginning we did manage to get rolling, and pick up a few pointers here and there. Today we have the fine, finished product that is ending the Junior year and can't see what earthly good the Senior session will do him. Any Junior —no others need apply—will tell you that he knows as much dentistry as he will ever know, if not more.

Our class is very lucky to have two fair young coeds to brighten our weary way; but, alas, we seem to be losing their affections. During Christmas vacation one of the two took a trip home and promised her hand in marriage to a gentleman we didn't even suspect as competition. From all appearances the other is also being rapidly taken from us.

In years to come we shall always wax nostalgic as we look back to our Junior year in dental school, our first year in the actual practice of the profession we have chosen as our life's work.

The class of '43 has passed another stepping-stone towards its goal. We are now on the threshold of our long awaited clinical work, which will cram the memories of our sophomore year into a small corner of our brain.

The first month was the most enthralling of the entire year. The act of preparing our first cavity made us feel like full-fledged dentists, but soon the height of our knowledge was chopped down to the same level as that of a bewildered freshman. We found out that all the information concerning cavity preparations was not to be learned from reading the first chapter of the text.

A new physiology course was introduced. This course included laboratory work in the new Bressler Research Building. After the first few lectures, the "sophs" spoke of nothing else but spinal reflexes, muscle contractions, causes of blood pressure changes, and other topics which physiologists are still debating. After doing some of the experiments, we decided that we would rather put our faith in the field of dentistry than try to be great physiologists.

The social life of the sophomore class was a huge success. We were well represented at all the school functions. The boys proved to the upperclassmen, as well as to the wide-eyed freshmen, that the "sophs" can hold their own when the band starts playing. The class prom was held at the Chesapeake Club, and the attendance was one hundred per cent. Everyone forgot his trials and tribulations and danced until dawn.

We are now knocking on the door of our clinical experiences. May we all pass through this door into the future with as few scars and as little pain as possible.

Freshman Class Chronicle

It seems so long ago since some eighty young men, from all sections of the country, met as a unit for the first time to begin the initial year of a dental career. Not that time treads slowly. On the contrary, the past eight months were so complete with activity that it might be said that "Freshmen wait for neither time nor tide." Consequently, we look back at this past year with justifiable pride and with the feeling that we are an important step closer to our objective.

Of course, not all of our time and efforts were devoted to work. We did manage to get a little sleep. In fact, we even maintained social contacts in our so-called "spare time". The climax of the year in this latter respect was the class dance whose grand success could be attributed, in no little measure, to the music furnished by the orchestra of our own Ted Hart.

Since this was our first year in professional school it is natural that we were quite impressionable and no doubt we shall never forget our first anatomy lab, the first denture (we don't say "plates" anymore) we prepared, or Beaumont's hats. Such phrases as "Do you see?", "and I might add" and "Now gentlemen" are a few of the many souvenirs we shall always treasure.

Thus the months passed with never a slack moment, and while we may look back at this year with contentment or to the coming summer for a vacation, it is with even greater eagerness and anxiety that we look forward to the coming year and years at B.C.D.S.

Second Year Predental Class Chronicle

This class sees that certain day in June, 1945, getting closer. Once again, everybody assembled at the beginning of the year to relate the incidents that happened during the past summer. We found that several additions had been made to our class, increasing the total strength to thiry-five.

Anxiously consulting our schedule, we discovered that our star pool players and bowlers would have ample time to improve their sport. However, after the first few weeks, everyone calmed down to get the most out of his second year in college.

We wondered if the roll were going to be called in Sociology. We all wanted too much time in Organic lab. Quillin at last found somebody who talks his language. Gare's voice is changing. Flitton let up on the dumbbells. Everyone commented on Pitruzzella's new adornment—a mustache.

The School finally took notice of our class at the all-class dance of November 2. We wonder why—Zemel and Pitruzzella? Every member of the class had a good time at our own class dance on February 3. An orchestra managed by one of our classmates supplied music for both occasions.

May every member of our class have a happy future. To those who have selected dentistry as their profession—see you in the fall.

First Year Predental Class Chronicle

We, the class of '46, are well launched on our way towards our goal. Despite a shaky start, which is characteristic of all freshman classes, we are now firmly established as a functional part of the B.C.D.S.

Some noteworthy events have taken place during the past several months. For instance, the class organized a bowling league which has greatly increased the class spirit and has paved the way for the recently formed softball league. These activities have filled the vacancy caused by the lack of social and athletic functions in the predental curriculum. The class dance, which was held in collaboration with the second year predental students, was a great success.

The class is a very interesting group because of the different types of individuals in it. D. G. Smith, the playboy type, and Joe DeMuzio contributed color to the class in more ways than one. The two baseball fans, Peterson and Merriam, thrash out the chances of the Brooklyn Dodgers against the Giants after almost every public speaking class. This debate always ends with Peterson's making and taking bets on the Dodgers. The class does not suffer from a lack of philosophy, receiving a more than abundant supply from the frequent utterances of philosopher Shapiro, the lad who assumes all the worry of the class. The magic feats of magician Wilbur are equalled only by some of the mad antics of philosopher Shapiro, the temperate Smith, and wooer Ramirez in the chem lab. Irishman Barry, the class wit, weekly leaves the Clover with a new grip on life. However, the true moral standard of the class is exemplified by Grempler's wanting to swing a hammock on a South Sea island instead of swinging a romance with a lovely, vivacious maid of nature.

Ogden Nash: This Is Going to Hurt Just a Bit

One thing I like less than most things is sitting in a dentist chair with my mouth wide open,
And that I will have to do it again is a hope that I am against hope hopen.
Because some tortures are physical and some are mental,
But the one that is both is dental.
It is hard to be self-possessed
With your jaw digging into your chest,
So hard to retain your calm
When your fingernails are making serious alterations in your life line or love line or some other important line in your palm;
So hard to give your usual effect of cheery benignity
When you know your position is one of the two or three in life most lacking in dignity.
And your mouth is like a section of road that is being worked on,
And it is all cluttered up with stone crushers and concrete mixers and drills and steam rollers and there isn't a nerve in your head that you aren't being irked on.
Oh, some people are unfortunate enough to be strung up by thumbs,
And others have things done to their gums,
And your teeth are supposed to be being polished,
But you have reason to believe they are being demolished,
And the circumstance that adds most to your terror
Is that it's all done with a mirror,
Because the dentist may be a bear, or as the Romans used to say, only they were referring to a feminine bear when they said it, an ursa,
But all the same how can you be sure when he takes his crowbar in one hand and mirror in the other he won't get mixed up, the way you do when you try to tie a bow tie with the aid of a mirror, and forget that left is right and vice versa?
And then at last he says that will be all; but it isn't because he then coats your mouth from cellar to roof
With something that I suspect is generally used to put a shine on a horse's hoof,
And you totter to your feet and think, well it's all over now and after all it was only this once,
And he says come back in three monce.
And this, O Fate, is I think the most vicious circle that thou ever sentest,
That Man has to go continually to the dentist to keep his teeth in good condition when the chief reason he wants his teeth in good condition is so that he won't have to go to the dentist.

Richard Bayly Winder, M.D., D.D.S.

Richard Bayly Winder, M.D., D.D.S., son of Nathaniel J. Winder, was born July 17, 1828, at "Covinton", the old family home in Eastville, Northampton County, on the Eastern Shore of Virginia. After an uneventful childhood, he was prepared for college by his tutor, an Oxford graduate. He first attended lectures at Princeton, then at the University of Virginia. After graduating from Virginia he conducted a small mercantile business at Eastville for a short time. Then he married Miss Elizabeth Custis and moved to "The Folly", Accomac County, Virginia, where he established himself as a gentleman planter, active in farming and in raising horses. Winder entertained lavishly and was famous for his hospitality.

At the outbreak of the Civil War, he enlisted as a major in the Confederate Army on the staff of his uncle, General Winder. Immediately after the war he was imprisoned at the Old Capital, in Washington. Paroled, he returned to his home without sufficient means to live, as he had been accustomed, in luxurious ease and elegance.

He settled his affairs at the plantation, and with characteristic energy set to work to build for the future. He decided to study dentistry at the Baltimore College of Dental Surgery, and graduated in 1869 at the age of 41. He attended lectures at the College of Physicians and Surgeons and took his degree in Medicine in 1873.

During the same year he founded the Maryland Dental College, the faculty consisting of M. W. Foster, Edward and Henry Keech, Samuel Fields, H. Williams, Byron F. Coy; with Winder as Professor of Physiology and Hygiene, and dean of the Faculty.

In 1879 the Maryland Dental College was merged with the Baltimore College of Dental Surgery, and Winder was made Professor of Dental Surgery and Operative Dentistry. Soon after the fusion, he was elected Dean of the School, and he held the position until his death in 1894. His interest was largely bound up in college work. Under his direction the Baltimore College of Dental Surgery prospered as never before.

The idea of a National Association of Dental Faculties originated with him, and he was the first one to advance the idea that dentistry should be recognized and placed on an equal footing with medicine by the United States Government. He also organized the Maryland State Dental Association and brought about the union of the Maryland and District of Columbia Societies.

Phyllis McGinley: Intimations of Mortality

(On being told by the dentist that "This will be over soon")

Indeed, it will soon be over, I shall be done
With the querulous drill, the forceps, the clove-smelling cotton.
I can go forth into fresher air, into the sun,
This narrow anguish forgotten.

In twenty minutes or forty or half an hour,
I shall be easy, and proud of my hard-got gold.
But your apple of comfort is eaten by worms, and sour.
Your consolation is cold.

This will not last, and the day will be pleasant after.
I'll dine tonight with a witty and favorite friend.
No doubt tomorrow I shall rinse my mouth with laughter.
And also that will end.

The handful of time that I am charily granted
Will likewise pass, to oblivion duly apprenticed.
Summer will blossom and autumn be faintly enchanted.
Then time for the grave, or the dentist.

Because you are shrewd, my man, and your hand is clever,
You must not believe your words have a charm to spell me.
There was never a half of an hour that lasted forever.
Be quiet. You need not tell me.

M. Whilldin Foster, D.D.S., M.D.

Seventh dean of the B.C.D.S. was Dr. M. Whilldin Foster, whose kindliness and fine sense of honor made him universally beloved. He was generally described as a gentleman of the old school, for he was by both birth and instinct in every sense of the word a gentleman. He always gave freely of his services to his profession and was loved for his fairness and sympathetic consideration of others.

Dr. Foster was born in Philadelphia on May 17, 1832. He obtained his early education at Crowell's Academy for Boys at West Chester, Pennsylvania. About 1845 he began the study of dentistry in that city as a private pupil of Dr. Jesse C. Green. He then went to Philadelphia, where he attended the Philadelphia Dental College for one session. At the close of the term he went to Indianapolis, Indiana, to practice dentistry. He remained there for one year and then accepted an offer of a partnership with a dentist in Easton, Pennsylvania. At the end of a year the partnership was dissolved and Dr. Foster moved to Wilmington, Delaware. About 1861 he became associated with Dr. Robert Arthur in Baltimore and continued in this partnership for about five years. At the termination of this association he began to practice independently at 9 W. Franklin Street, where he practiced continually for more than forty years.

When the Maryland Dental College was established in 1873, Dr. Foster was elected to the chair of Dental Mechanism and Metallurgy, and he continued to fill this position until the Maryland Dental College was merged with the B.C.D.S. in 1878. At this time the B.C.D.S. conferred upon Dr. Foster the honorary degree of D.D.S. and at the same time he was elected to the chair of Pathology and Therapeutics in the B.C.D.S., which position he held until the time of his death.

In 1894, upon the death of Dr. R. B. Winder, dean of the B.C.D.S., Dr. Foster was elected as his successor to that office. Dr. Foster, in addition to possessing qualifications in the dental field for this office, had also graduated from the Medical Department of Washington University and from the College of Physicians and Surgeons of Baltimore.

Dr. Foster married Miss Anna E. Green of West Chester in 1856. He had one son, Dr. William G. Foster, and one daughter, Isabel.

Dr. Foster's capacity for leadership enabled him to fill many positions in connection with his professional career. He was an educator and administrator of educational affairs, and served for twenty years as dean of the B.C.D.S. It is said of him that he was always the wise and judicious counselor, the kind and sympathetic friend.

THE 1941 MIRROR

The 1941 MIRROR Staff presents this annual with the hope that it will serve the entire student body as a souvenir of the past year. We have endeavored to include principally those activities associated with the School, such as the studies, the dances, and the various organizations, but have not overlooked those interests pertaining to the student's life away from School.

The Staff has endeavored to produce a dignified book, yet one lending itself to informality. The Staff has worked diligently to produce a good annual and sincerely hopes that the MIRROR will be so received by the student body. —THE EDITOR.

THE JOURNAL

This year marks another milestone in the history of the Journal which, after five years of excellent service, has become one of the essential publications of the School.

The Journal strives, as one of its many aims, to bring about a closer relationship among the alumni, faculty, and students, which is essential for the propagation of the ideals of dentistry. It affords alumni as well as students opportunity to publish any new material about which they may have developed new theories or technics.

Last year the Journal presented a notable summary of the various activities of the Dental Centenary, which was another realization of the basic desire to better the dental profession by presenting the latest contributions of the more prominent men in the various fields of dentistry.

Each year the Journal presents an abridgment of the preceding year's prize-winning thesis. All alumni of this Dental School receive the Journal and thereby acquaint themselves with the various activities of their Alma Mater, especially of Commencement Week activities.

Indeed, the Journal has a valuable future in store, as it intends to make greater contributions to assist the men in dentistry to render a more proficient service to mankind.

Chronicle of the Gorgas Odontological Society

The Gorgas Odontological Society was founded in 1916. Typical of the "World's First Dental College," whose history is replete with influential advancements in dental education, it was the first undergraduate study and scholarship society among the nation's dental schools.

The ideals of the Society are described in the original code of the Society: "The objects of the Gorgas Odontological Society of the University of Maryland shall be to create an active interest in questions pertaining to the dental profession, to develop the student's power of thought, and to contribute to his development through participation in the discussion of professional topics, to promote the interests of the profession at large by creating in the student's mind a feeling of need for professional associations, and to establish higher ideals of service for life's work." It is of great significance that the first President of the Society was our dean, Dr. J. Ben Robinson.

The Society perpetuates the name of Dr. Ferdinand J. S. Gorgas, who set an example for professional activity and attitude which will remain, as long as our school and Society survive, a constant, powerful source of inspiration to every member. Dr. Gorgas taught dental students for fifty-four years, and acted in the capacity of dean for forty-five years. His tremendous contributions to the profession were not only in the realm of education, but in literature, organization, and other fields.

This year has seen an alteration in the basis for admission to membership. It seems that the scholastic level of the student body has been greatly improved since the additional year was added to the predental curriculum. As a natural outcome, a majority of the juniors and seniors became eligible for the Society by earning the requisite scholastic average of 85% or better. It was obvious that so comprehensive a society would soon lose its honorary aspect, so it became necessary to limit membership to the upper forty per cent of the two classes. It is expected that under this new regulation the Society will continue to be the goal of all undergraduates and, therefore, will remain an incentive for better, more industrious student performances.

The Society is not without its less serious nature. Its two social affairs are among the school's outstanding events. Before mid-years there is a stag banquet and dance in honor of the initiates; the spring affair is a delightful dinner dance at which the seniors receive certificates of membership to embellish the walls of their prospective offices.

STUDENT ACTIVITY COUNCIL

Representing the Student Body: Warren D. Haggerty, Senior; Andrew J. Amatrudo, Junior; Riley E. Spoon, Sophomore; Robert H. Smith, Freshman; Herbert H. Flitton, Second Year Predental; Eugene E. Flesher, First Year Predental

Representing the Faculty: Dr. Burt B. Ide, Chairman; Dr. Harry B. McCarthy, Secretary-Treasurer; Dr. Alexander H. Paterson; Dr. Grayson W. Gaver; Dr. Brice M. Dorsey.

In 1936 the Student Activity Council was created by vote of the Faculty Council for the purpose of encouraging and supervising extracurricular activities to the end that a more enthusiastic and loyal school spirit may be fostered. The Council consists of a committee composed of an elected member from each class and several members of the faculty appointed each year by the Dean.

The objectives of the faculty committee are to supervise the distribution of the Student Activity Fund so that each class will receive its rightful share of benefits from the Fund; to see that all dances, banquets and other class functions held in the name of the University are properly chaperoned by a member or members of this committee or someone appointed to act for it; to set up and provide wholesome entertainment and sports for the student body in so far as such activities are compatible with good scholarship and fellowship; to confer with a similar committee representing the six classes regarding their participation in the School's activities; to try to bring about a closer relationship between School and student; to give advice and counsel to members of the several classes; to set aside an amount sufficient to underwrite the publication of a student magazine; to provide a copy of the annual to each student.

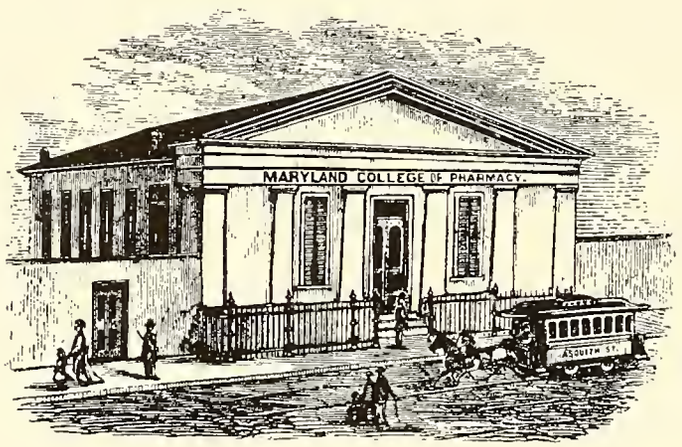
School of Pharmacy Centennial

On behalf of those associated with the Baltimore College of Dental Surgery, we pay tribute to the School of Pharmacy, University of Maryland, in recognition of its one hundred years of progress and achievement.

1841 — 1941



The School of Pharmacy of the University of Maryland was organized on July 20, 1840, by a progressive group of apothecaries and physicians then practicing in the State of Maryland, who recognized the necessity for more thoroughly educated and better trained pharmacists if this rapidly growing phase of medical service, the art of preparing and compounding medicines, was to be properly developed.

The school was incorporated on January 27, 1841, as the Maryland College of Pharmacy, and the first course of lectures was begun in November of the same year. The lectures were delivered by members of the College, seven of whom participated. There were but three graduates, from Maryland, Virginia, and Delaware, at the first Commencement, held in June, 1842.

The Maryland College of Pharmacy continued to operate as an independent institution until 1904, when it merged with the group of professional schools in Baltimore then known as the University of Maryland. It became a part of the State University when the old University of Maryland merged with the Maryland State College of Agriculture in 1920.

FRATERNITIES

William G. Foster, D.D.S.

Dr. William G. Foster, last dean of the B.C.D.S. before the merger, was born in Phillipsburg, New Jersey, on September 23, 1860, the son of Dr. and Mrs. M. Whilldin Foster. The family soon moved to Baltimore, where he attended private school until he was fourteen; he then became a pupil at the famous old West Nottingham Academy in Cecil County. He also attended the Maryland Agricultural College, where he became Senior Captain of the Cadet Corps.

Dr. Foster entered the B.C.D.S., where his father was a member of the faculty. He graduated in 1881, but maintained an official connection with the institution from that time until his retirement in 1923. He was appointed Assistant Demonstrator of Mechanical Dentistry and Professor of Operative Technique. Upon the retirement of his father in 1914 he became connected with the department of Pathology and Therapeutics and was made Dean of the Faculty. He acted in this capacity until his retirement in 1923.

Dr. Foster was the first dean to devote his entire time to the affairs of the college. He was also a charter member of Alpha Chapter of Psi Omega Fraternity, established in the fall of 1892.

After his retirement from the B.C.D.S. in 1923, Dr. Foster lived the life of a country gentleman at St. Michael's on the Eastern Shore of Maryland until his death on March 7, 1939.

The History of Alpha Omega

Thirty-three years ago the Alpha Omega fraternity was founded by the fusion of a group at the Baltimore College of Dental Surgery and a group at the Pennsylvania College of Dental Surgery. The Baltimore group was designated as the Zeta Mu chapter. With determination and directed enthusiasm, the fraternity has grown into maturity, until today there are thirty-four undergraduate chapters in the various dental schools in the United States and Canada

The purposes of the fraternity are manifold. To the student it provides a medium of friendship and understanding. Because of its organized group activity, the undergraduate can enrich his personality with sincere fraternalism and vital professionalism. The student lives and functions within a group and works directly for the benefit of his particular organization; yet correlates his activities for the benefit of the university as a whole. For the graduate the fraternity provides a means for advancing scientific research and perpetuating the professional approach.

In 1912 forty men met for the first Alpha Omega convention. This year about five hundred men, dentists and students alike, gathered in Baltimore to attend the thirty-third annual convention of the Alpha Omega fraternity. One of the highlights of the convention was the awarding of the Alpha Omega Annual Achievement Medal to Brigadier General Leigh Cole Fairbank, Chief of the Dental Corps of the United States Army, for outstanding work in the profession.

With all our energy and enthusiasm and with an enduring gratitude to our School, we Alpha Omegans will maintain and then pass onward the high standards which have been set by our able and sincere predecessors.

History of Xi Psi Phi

The Xi Psi Phi fraternity was founded in Ann Arbor, Michigan, February 8, 1889. Four years later, through the efforts of Dr. C. J. Grieves and a few students of the Dental Department, Eta chapter was formed at the University of Maryland.

Today the fraternity is represented by twenty-eight active chapters and by twenty-one alumni chapters throughout the United States and Canada.

The Xi Psi Phi Fraternity is a brotherhood of men chosen from those who have made their decision for a career in the practice of Dentistry. It was organized for the purpose of providing a better, more substantial foundation on which to build a successful professional life; for the purpose of creating a desire for a cleaner, healthier, more wholesome atmosphere in which to live, and for the purpose of developing an appreciation of friendship and hospitality. All chapters are united in the effort to promote social unity among dental students, aiding them whenever possible and instilling in them an appreciation of lofty ideals of their chosen profession.

History of Psi Omega

The Psi Omega Fraternity was born in the fall of 1892 at the old Baltimore College of Dental Surgery, the first dental school in the world.

A small group of students, led by Herbert S. Edrington, who is now living in New Orleans, Louisiana, and William S. Hamilton, conceived the idea and formulated the plans through which our fraternity was brought into existence. With a feeling that out of their association might grow everlasting friendship, which might be transferred to generations yet unborn, they composed the original ritual and constitution, and chose as their motto, "I serve".

Spurred on by the enthusiasm of the Alpha chapter, the students at the New York College of Dental Surgery established the Beta chapter in the same year. Gamma Chapter at the Philadelphia College of Dental Surgery was established in 1894.

The fraternity was reorganized into a national body at the first constitutional convention, held in Philadelphia, February, 1895. The Supreme Council elected at this convention consisted of H. E. Friesell, E. H. Sting, and Ellison Hillyer. These, our first leaders, are largely responsible for the phenomenal growth of the fraternity, and for the spirit of loyalty so manifest in the hearts of all loyal Psi Omegans.

In 1923, with the consolidation of the old B.C.D.S. and the University of Maryland Dental School, the Phi and Alpha Chapters clasped hands, and thereafter became known as the Phi-Alpha chapter. This name, however, was changed to Alpha on January 11, 1939, by order of the Supreme Council.

History of Sigma Epsilon Delta

The year 1941 is the fortieth anniversary year of the founding of our fraternity. This occasion was unique in that it marked the formation of the first Hebrew dental fraternity in the world. The history of the forty years shows them to have been successful, fruitful years in that five large chapters located along the Eastern seaboard were established.

Our successful existence has been made possible by carrying out the ideals laid down by our founders: to unite certain members of the dental profession for the promotion and perpetuation of fraternalism, and to attain the highest excellence in the science and art of Dentistry.

Epsilon chapter of Maryland, now in its fifteenth year of existence, is the most recent addition to the fraternity. From its very inception Epsilon has carried on an active, vigorous campaign of fraternalism. Our efforts have been well rewarded, for although at the time of its founding there were only nine members, today Epsilon has taken its place among the foremost organizations at the School. We sincerely believe that our new brethren will pass on our ideals to others in the years to come.

S.E.D. has eighteen men in the present graduating class. These fraters, through their diligent efforts and true spirit of friendship, have done much to better the fraternity. To these men, as well as the other members of the graduating class, we, too, extend our congratulations and sincerest good wishes.

BOHNE—Will sue the University for not providing better patients to work on than guys like Farrell.

BRESSMAN—Will tell everybody he has made New Jersey the Mecca of learning in dentistry.

BRISKIN—Will ask $27.00 for an amalgam, $78.00 for inlays and $103.00 for synthetics.

BROTMAN—Will always think he was gyped out of the fullmouth operative restoration medal after he had exhibited his patient with full upper and lower dentures.

BURCH—Will finally get that commission as lieutenant in the Army Dental Corps, the day after he finishes a year's training as a buck private.

CALDWELL—Will endeavor to keep up the "Caldwell Tradition" by making up lists of answerless questions for his son to stump the instructors with.

CALLAWAY—Will be presented to West Virginia as U. of M.'s latest gift to dentistry.

CAPONE—Will be asked for the one millionth time if he is related to Al.

CASTELLE—Will be at Pimlico Race Track on Tuesdays and Thursdays but will have a sign on his office door reading, "Doctor attending the American Dental Association Convention."

CHERNOW—Will try again to get dentistry to join the C.I.O.

CHMAR—His patients at School will follow him to his private practice for replacement of the fillings he put in as a student.

COLLINS—Will be picketed in Vermont because he had become a Democrat while in Baltimore.

CORBITT—Recommends winning over child patients by gentleness; using the towel technique only as a second resort.

CULLEN—Will receive ten to fifteen St. Patrick's Day greetings every year.

DEMBO—Will become known as the man who made the Harvard Dental School look foolish.

DEPASQUALE—One of the few men who felt like a dentist before graduation.

DESCHERER—Will have a set of surveying instruments, plumb line, etc., to test for those line and point angles.

DUBANSKY—Will feed his friends peanut brittle for years . . . but it won't help.

EASTON—Will finally become convinced that there's no money in prophylaxis on artificial dentures.

FARRELL—Will sue Bohne for malpractice on the teeth he filled for him at School.

FREY—Will continue to try to figure out what we're going to do about that nutrition course we were supposed to get in our sophomore year.

FULTON—Will persist in telling people he invented the steamboat.

GOLD—Will recommend copper amalgam, silver amalgam, silicate and porcelain fillings, but never gold.

Senior Prognostications (Continued)

GOLDEN—Will constantly bring patients back to school to show the instructors the kind of work he does now.

GUDWIN—Will be exonerated by the Supreme Court for killing the Editor of the Sun . . . the one who said dentistry is not a biologic science.

HAGGERTY—Will have a sign in the office reading "If it's gold—we have it."

HAWKINS—Will become convinced after a year of high finance that there's no money in dentistry.

HELLER—Will have all his patients admitting he's the best, least painful dentist in town.

HEWITT—Will still be selling articulators, flasks, contact points and what have you to unsuspecting freshmen.

HYMAN—Will explain to his patients that it really doesn't hurt; they're just letting their imaginations run away with them.

HYMANSON—Will be happily married to Mimsy.

KAPILOFF BROS.—Will start their own dental school around the corner from the U. of M. to institute the teaching of some of their own concepts of dentistry.

KAROW—Will stop at least once to consider what Dr. Latcham would have to say about the preparation of the cavity he has just filled.

KELLAR—Will come down to the U. of M. regularly—to let freshmen "gas him up".

KLINGELHOFER—Will catch cold in his feet—someone stole his spats.

KOENIG—Will set the dental profession agog with his astounding discovery, "Caries is practically nil in edentulous mouths."

KORNREICH—Will blindfold himself every time he gives prophylaxis.

LAURO—Will not have anything to do with gangsters, thieves, and dentists.

LAWRENCE—Will become disgusted with his patients, dentistry, and himself at one time or another.

LEVY—Will never be able to understand why his patients insist on getting gas just to have cotton rolls put in their mouth.

MARANO—Will still believe discreet advertising in dentistry, such as full-page ads in reputable papers like the N. Y. Times, is okay.

MATISI—Will constantly be faced with the problem, "Which shall it be today, football, dentistry, wrestling or tick-tack-toe?"

THE PROSTHETIC LAB—THE FRESHMAN'S DILEMMA

McCLEES—Will reduce his Dad's operations to mere reduction of fractures, etc., and do all the cleft palates and harelips himself.

McDANIEL—Will prove to be the only man in the class who doesn't have to worry about how his spleen is acting up.

MISHKIN—Will become a leading exponent of "Patient Education." Has patient read the three volumes of Black and write a 10,000 words thesis on them before he'll work on him. Also insists upon models, X-rays and blue prints.

OLLMAN—Will receive "Glamour boy" offers from Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, Paramount and Walt Disney.

PARKER—Will become so experienced in platework that all he'll do is throw 14 teeth, some plaster, some wax and some acrylic into a flask, say "Hocus Pocus", and pull out—well, we'd rather not say.

POLICOW—Won't be able to make up his mind to buy three dental chairs and take advantage of the wholesale price or just take one and pay retail.

REUSCH—Will send his children to dental school. Some guys never learn a lesson.

ROSENBERG—Will have plans under way for revolutionary texts on "Anesthesia", "Fishing for Whales in Alaska", "X-Ray", "Hibernation of the Elk", "Cleft Palate" and what have you.

RUDO—With the first appointment at 5 A.M. and the last at 11:30 P.M.—no point in wasting time.

SANTERAMO—Will install a direct wire to Vitolo's office so he can get him over more quickly in an emergency.

SCHILLER—Will for some reason or other have the habit of looking behind him to see if someone is watching him put in that filling.

SCHULTHEIS—Will quote prices to patients in six figures. Probably from handling the business end of the yearbook.

SINGER—Will have dental offices in twelve states to get the fullest advantage from the National Boards.

SLOAN—Will become known as the man who introduced "Modern" dentistry to Brooklyn.

SMITH, B.—Will sell two more instructors at the U. of M. some of his dad's furniture and finally have the whole school sleeping in his father's beds.

SMITH, J. H.—Still wondering why some fellows called the effects of his eyestrain a "shiner."

SPINA—Will foster some new theories on painless dentistry like don't remove decay, don't prepare cavities, don't fill them, don't do anything—Painless Dentist.

STORCH—Will become the leader of a dental dictatorship in New Jersey.

TAUB—Will continue to wonder how some of those fillings he put in at School stuck there.

TOFFIC—Will wear steel gloves when he works on children and dare the little darlings to bite him.

TOLLEY—Will make the discovery that the "watchamacallit" is the elusive organism which causes "thingamajig."

VITOLO—Will never outgrow the habit of dunking doughnuts with a fork.

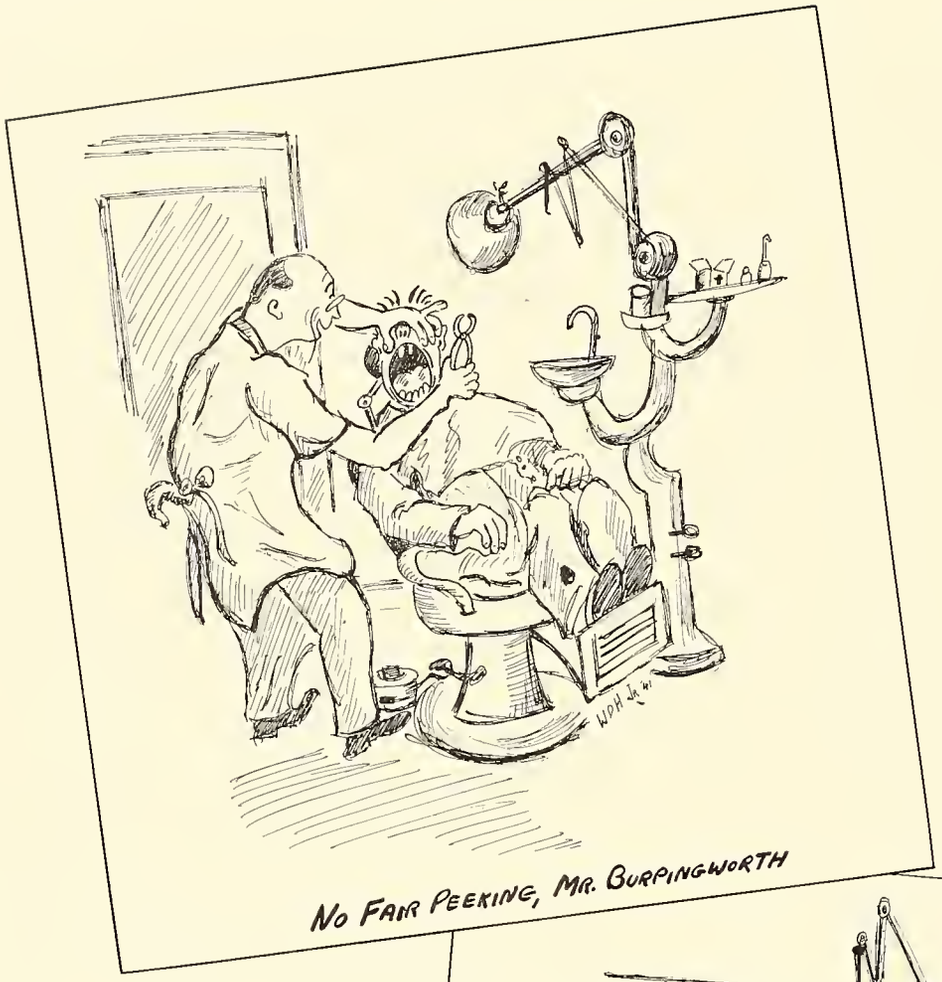
WEINGER—Still wondering why he was hissed so much after the yearbook was handed to the seniors.

ZEGER—Will receive the Nobel prize for introducing dentistry to the North American Eskimo. (Now all he has to do is bring a chair and an X-ray machine up there.)

ZUSKIN—After becoming commander-in-chief of the Navy Dental Corps wondering if he couldn't have done better in the Army Dental Corps.

IRVING I. WEINGER, '41.

ALTAR BOYS



No Fair Peeking, Mr. Burpingworth

Now don't go away, Charlie

THEY SERVED US WELL

DR. REVERY—Dentist

The new dental chair was to arrive soon. He already had two chairs in his dental office. Yes, and two assistants. Now he thought he needed a third chair, and it was to arrive soon.

Dr. Revery came out of one of his operating rooms and wiped the perspiration from his brow. It had been a difficult impaction. But he had done a nice job, and the fee —well, that was nice too. He peeked into his waiting-room—six patients waiting. He knew that he couldn't possibly take care of them all today. In his mind he visioned how much he needed that third chair. He signaled one of his assistants and sent her out to give two of the waiting patients new appointments and send them home. No fear of losing them—not with Dr. Revery's reputation.

There was an empty feeling in the doctor's stomach. He thought for a moment and remembered—he hadn't had an opportunity to eat. Well, he'd have a good dinner. Yes, at that swanky restaurant on Main Street that most people went to on special occasions but which he patronized every day.

The phone rang. It was the house physician at the General Hospital: "Can Dr. Revery do a reduction of the mandible Friday morning on Mr. Morgan Astor. He's been in an automobile accident." Morgan Astor—the name suggested a fee in as many figures as Dr. Revery could muster. He accepted the case and called an assistant to take down the details.

Well, he must get on with the rest of his patients. His work for the day was by no means completed. After supper he still had to keep an appointment for a surgical case he was performing at his Park Place offices which he maintained strictly by appointment. Dr. Revery was tired. He was sorry he hadn't made that appointment for some other day.

The Doctor handled the rest of his patients with but one interruption. Mrs. Vander had given his secretary a check for $375.00 for the set of dentures he had constructed for her. The usual fee was $400.00,—was it okay? Dr. Revery remembered; it was okay—he had given her a special concession on the gold from her old dentures.

At last the doctor was through. Soon he was in the street. His chauffeur Danny was right at the wheel waiting for him, Danny was a good chauffeur—you've got to have a good one to get around in traffic with a 16 cylinder Cadillac.

After supper Dr. Revery rushed to his Park Place offices. He was late, but he smiled to himself as he thought, "They'll wait." He almost wished they wouldn't; he was so tired.

On his way home Dr. Revery remembered. He had an appointment with some friends for the opera. He'd just phone and say he couldn't make it. The bed was the only opera he wanted at the moment.

Next morning the alarm clock sounded. A rather fresh young person sprang out of bed. He dressed quickly and rushed to the street, where he met the boys on the usual corner. They boarded a cab together and he directed the driver, "The Dental School, Lombard and Greene Streets." To the boys he said, "I hope we're not late for lecture." To himself he thought "God, what a dream!"

PREDENTAL PROFS

ANNUAL SCHOOL DANCE

IMAGINE OUR EMBARRASSMENT

CULLEN—When a patient of his junior year returned to the clinic surprised to see him still in school. Jerry had told him the year before that he was a senior and was graduating in June.

DUBANSKY—When he phoned Dr. Aisenberg to ask him to postpone an examination because of the close proximity to another. Paul was most flatly refused.

BETTS—When Dr. Wilkerson addressed him as "You, the fair-haired boy."

KAROW—When he got his patient's mustache entangled in the impression compound and was forced to cut the mustache in order to free it.

HEWITT—When he got his hands covered with hydro-colloid impression material the first time he used it. Said Earl to his patient—"Gee, this is the first time in all my experience that I have ever had this kind of trouble."

BEAVEN—When his first patient, who was twelve years old, excused herself, just as he was to begin the prophylaxis, so that she might speak to her cousin in the waiting-room. She must have been as terrified as he—she never came back.

BOHNE—When he stated in an Oral Surgery examination that one of the important factors in the treatment of a fracture is the elimination of the patient.

KOENIG—When he spatulated his plaster in the reverse direction in order to unmix the plaster.

BERMAN—When he mistook the upper jaw for the lower jaw while extracting teeth. Result—the patient later returned with the same toothache.

BAKER—(After dismissing his first patient). "I put the feller in the chair. I adjusted the back. Then I adjusted the headrest. It was then that I decided that there was a lot to this here dentistry.

DR. LATCHAM—(Upon questioning the class about the condensation of amalgam into simple Class 2 Cavity). "Does anyone remember what instrument was used in this case?"

CALDWELL—(The only one who raised his hand) "I do, doctor."

DR. LATCHAM—(Drawing an instrument on the blackboard) "This is the one that was used. It is called a hoe condenser. Do you recognize it, Caldwell?

CALDWELL—"Yes, sir."

DR. LATCHAM—"Uh-huh, that's not the instrument at all."

CALDWELL—Only blushes.

1—I say, Doctor.
2—Bring back the button.
3—Clean up structures.
4—Now, men.
5—Very good, but—
6—Why don't you get your phone call?
7—Who wants an inlay patient?
8—It gets awful hot here in the summer.
9—Fat, like butter.
10—Hey, shaigitz.
11—Do it over.
12—Time's a-wasting.
13—Chart it up, boys.
14—Why don't you fellows go out to the park or to a show on such a nice day?
15—It should not be too shallow or too deep, but deep enough.
16—Bisect the angle.
17—Use your angle formers.
18—The "p" is silent as in "baby."
19—I allude to . . .
20—Bring back my shade guide.

Dentist: Why are you crying now?

Little Boy: I gotta go again.

There once was a dentist named Bressman,
Who loved the women, God bless 'em;
But once he forgot to use tact
And so he got stabbed in the back.
And now he doesn't ever caress 'em.

What a handsome guy I am, said Ollman;
So he got the job of clinic patrolman.
Though he beamed round and round
The girls snobbed him with frowns.
Guess we're the ones left to console him.

I wonder where Levy led that woman who strolled over to him and very engagingly asked directions to the "fraternity ward."

Dr. Gaver—"Are there any questions about this technic?"

Rosenberg—"I say, sir—would you say, sir, that this technic is one which we shall say, sir, is rather difficult to carry through and so justify the time consumed in the operation or would you differ, sir?"

(P. S.—He meant—ain't it just n.g.)

Levy, Levy, quite conceited, how does your clientele grow?
Why with coaxin' and boastin'
I can give them a roastin'
And "oh hello, Dr. Latcham, gosh I've missed you".

Corbitt is a little man;
In his frat he also ran.
First to gas about exams;
But with the girls,
He led the band.
Little Corbitt, wotta man! !

YEARBOOK CONTEST

Here is a contest which anyone may enter and in which everyone has an equal chance of winning. The following valuable prizes will be awarded:

One dozen assorted contact points.

Ten pairs of Dr. Latcham's point angles.

One gross of "'Absolutely painless" burs.

Five gold foil patients.

And numerous other prizes that we can't think of right now.

To enter one has merely to tear off three gold shell crowns from his next patient or two porcelain jackets and/or the equivalent and mail them in with the answers to the questions printed below. In case of a tie, neatness will not count and duplicate prizes will not be awarded. This contest is so crooked that a tie is impossible, so both contestants will be disqualified. Decision of the Judges is not final. Entries should be postmarked not later than midnight, October 15, 1973 . . . so hurry. Address entries to "Year Book Contest Editor," Bicuspid-on-the-Maine, Molar City, Alaska. As a matter of fact, if you want to be real smart, you shouldn't even mail in your entry. What shall you do with it? If you placed it in the next cavity you fill, that would be as good a suggestion as any.

The questions:

1. If each cotton roll is 2 inches long how many are there in a gross? (Remember, each cotton roll is 2 inches long.)
2. If you had a piece of cloth 1.32 centimeters by 32.7 millimeters and you washed it in Rinso and it shrank, how many amalgam squeeze cloths could you make from same. Part B. Why did the cloth shrink?
3. Same as question 2 only cloth is washed in Lux.
4. A prizefighter steps into the northeast corner of a ring and wears purple trunks. How many teeth has he? Be specific.
5. If a dentist fills 75 teeth a month, what does he charge for a full upper and lower denture? Please answer by means of a diagram.

As you graduate –

Be hard headed about your equipment investment . . invest your money where it will bring the greatest returns . .

As you prepare to open your first office ask yourself just two questions: First, how good is the equipment I intend to buy; and, second, what will that equipment company do for me after I have made my initial investment?

You have a right to know exactly what you are buying—and you should demand a frank answer from the dental supply company with which you will do business.

For your own satisfaction, Ritter answers your questions in this manner: For more than fifty years this company has manufactured equipment built up to a standard and not down to a price; it is recognized throughout the world as the Tiffany of dental equipment, for it gives years of lasting, satisfactory service.

This company also recognizes the fact that it has a duty to perform in connection with your welfare as you begin practice. And to enable you to start right, it offers its Practice Building Service, its Office Planning Service, its Statistical Service and its deferred investment plan as means of aiding you on the road to success.

Your Ritter dealer will gladly explain all features of Ritter equipment—plus the services which have been used by more than 38,000 dentists. Or, if you prefer, write direct.

Question How much does a CDX X-Ray Unit Cost?
Answer Cost of any x-ray unit equals initial price plus repair bills minus probable trade-in value.
18 years of performance prove that CDX with a somewhat higher initial price, needs little or no repair and has a trade-in value higher than any other unit.
∴ Cost of a CDX = as little as or less than any other x-ray unit on the market.

Weber Equipment---

The Dental Equipment of Dignity and High Utility Value

Forty-one years ago, the Founder of our Company invented and originated the Fountain Water Spittoon, and later developed the first combination of unit equipment ever introduced for use by the dental profession.

The policy of the Weber Company has always been that of constructive advancement and fair price maintenance. No greater value is to be found in dental equipment than is found in the Weber line of today.

The following services are at the command of all dental students, free of charge—

Office Planning and Office Decorating	Practice Counselling
Location Analysis	Individual Helps and Instructions

A complete set of 10 Counselling Brochures supplied each purchaser of Weber Equipment. delivered each month during the first year. when most needed.

All equipment sold on liberal terms and endorsed by first line dealers everywhere. Don't be satisfied until you have inspected the complete line Weber has to offer.

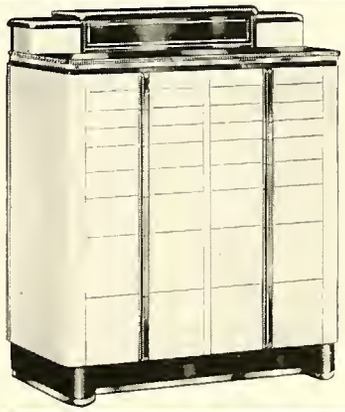
3-WAY HELP IN BUILDING A GOOD PRACTICE



1. Impresses Patients

A new American Cabinet wins patients' approval. It shows them you are equipped to serve them with the latest and best.

2. Evidence of Sanitation

It impresses them as clean and sanitary. The gleaming finish, glistening white instrument trays (sterilizable), and the sealed drawers that prevent contamination from dust . . . all speak eloquently of the sanitary precautions you take to protect your patients.

3. Quicker Treatments

It enables you to give quicker and more efficient treatment through convenient organization of instruments, easy running roller drawers, and rubber-silenced construction.
